Notes: British Settlers in Natal: 1824-1857 The British population of Natal during 1820-1857 was largely made up of the Immigrants from the Cape (including 1820 Settlers and their descendants). From 1824 Cape colonists had filtered into Natal for purposes of trade and/or settlement. A significant boost to their numbers occurred after Natal had been annexed to the Cape in 1845 and a civil service of almost entirely Cape men was structured for the new District. The first sale of Sugar in Market Square Natal ĳ 1856 (Source: Illustrated London News) Also in the mid-forties a small number of Cape colonists trekked to Natal from

Buntingville in Pondoland. These, former residents of Butterworth, had abandoned their homes as a result of disturbances during the Seventh Frontier War. They came in two parties, in 1846 and 1847, the latter group being led by James Calverley. Soldiers discharged from British regiments serving in South Africa The greatest number of these had served in the 45th Regiment, which was stationed in Natal from 1843 to 1859. Among other regiments whose members settled in Natal were the 27th (it was two companies of the 27th that marched to Natal with Capt. T.C. Smith in 1842), the 72nd, the 75th, the Royal Artillery and the Royal Engineers. A sprinkling of Royal Naval men also came to the Immigrants from Britain and Ireland. Most of these settlers arrived between 1849 and 1851. Some emigrated independently, but many came under the aegis of one or other emigration scheme. Before detailing the various groups it is necessary to sound a note of caution with regard to the occupations of the emigrants as they appear on the passenger lists. For an emigration promoter to receive a drawback on his deposits with Her Majesty's Land and Emigration Commissioners, each emigrant despatched had to be approved by the Commissioners, and then a certificate issued by the Natal Government attesting to the emigrant's good treatment on the voyage and his location on his allotment had to be obtained. The Emigration Commissioners stipulated for Natal that the approved occupations were those of labourer, mechanic, tradesman, farmer, or persons of small capital. To meet these requirements many an emigrant's calling was falsified on his emigration certificate. The emigrants ex Haidee were an exception. By and large they were what their emigration

Notes for Richard William Calverley

Richard William CALVERLEY had two farms, namely /Calverley Bend/ and /Bishop's Bend/. He had disposed of both properties by 1876, /Calverley Bend/ to the Colonial Government and /Bishop's Bend/ to Bishop Henry CALLAWAY on behalf of the Anglican Church (St. John's Mission, so named after Reverend John OXLEY-OXLAND).

Richard William CALVERLEY was born in 1843 at the farm /Beaufortvale/, near Bathurst. He was the son of 1820 Settler parents Richard William CALVERLEY (1809-1857) and Harriet WHEELER (1814-1898). He was appointed as the first Chief Constable of Umtata while trading at /Ncise /and then at Mqanduli while trading at /Mount Blazes/. In 1904 he purchased /Hely Grove/ from William BLACK and traded there until his death there in 1919.

Richard William CALVERLEY was married, circa 1863, to Mary-Ann SHARPLEY whose father, John Patrick SHARPLEY, was also an original Umtata Settler with an unnamed farm. Mary-Ann SHARPLEY was born in 1845 at Mnqwara, near Mqanduli.

The village of Umtata was laid out on /Calverley Bend/ and /Bishop's Bend/.
